NEW YORK, Dec. 18. The correspondent of the Tribune gives the following account of the butchery fo Gen. French's division : " It is not using too strong an expression to say that in this battle men were butchered. The loss of the enemy in comparison with ours must be insignificant. More than half the division of General French were placed Aors du combat before they had fired a shot, having orders to withhold their fire, charge bayonets and rush upon the entrenchments. They anticipated no obstacle, until they should meet in the hand to hand fight for the crest of the first range of hills. Lying close upon the soft earth behind a low stone wall, and half destroyed fence which we had not taken into our calculation as obstacles the enemy watched the appreach of General French till every man in the battle line came under aim of the best sharpshooters in the rebel army. In an instant, almost before the fence itself was discovered to be an obstacle, a long thick line of flame and smoke streamed above the fence and wall, and at the moment the first volley was fired, 50 [perces of artillery charged with grape and canister, sent on both flanks. Destruction so terrible has never before been seen during this war. General Hancock who engaged the enemy later in the day and fought upon nearly the same ground lost but little than Gen. French.
